CE Mark Requirements for the European Union (EU)

CE (Conformi Européenne, European Conformity in French) marking is a mandatory mark that signifies a product meets applicable European health, safety and environmental requirements set forth in European directives. The CE mark encourages free trade movement outside of and within EU member countries.

The “CE” mark can only be placed on final assemblies. The mark is not applicable to empty enclosures because enclosures are inactive components of final assemblies. Testing and compliance to EU directives are the responsibility of the final equipment manufacturer.

Allied Moulded Products, Inc.’s enclosures are designed in accordance with European standard IEC 60529 (Degrees Of Protection Provided By Enclosures) and are eligible to receive a manufacturer’s declaration of conformity. Allied’s AM and AMU series enclosures meet requirements for IP66. Models rated Type 6P meet IP 68, submersible up to 24 hours at a depth of six feet (1.8m).

Applicable European Directives include—

Machinery Safety 98/37/EC

Low Voltage 2006/95/EC

Removal of Hazardous Substances Directive (RoHS) 2002/96/EC

Other European Standards or Directives may also be required. Please contact Customer Service at 419 636 4217 if further information is required.
